

John Jason – Short bio

John Jason is widely regarded as a leading lawyer in regulatory law across all sectors of the financial services industry. He has acted for financial institutions, regulators and regulatory agencies on many of the most significant developments affecting the financial services sector, including major mergers and acquisitions, new product launches, anti-money laundering programs and capital formation. His experience also extends to advising on the governance structures that support strong risk management and compliance frameworks. Before joining our Toronto office's Business Law Group, he served as senior vice-president, deputy general counsel and chief compliance officer at BMO Financial Group. He also founded Canadian Compliance Group which provides innovative compliance risk management solutions for the financial sector.